Become a Certified Project Management Consultant and Coach

For a project management consultant, achieving a professional certification can be a big asset to your business. Although getting a certificate is not required to launch your practice, the certification has many benefits, including building your credibility and prestige. Certified professionals are regarded as more trustworthy and productive – and can charge higher commissions.

Who can apply?

A person fulfilling the role of a Consultant and / or Coach in the field of project management could be:

- » a consultant and / or coach in the company / organization
- » a freelance consultant and / or coach
- » a consultant and / or coach in a consulting / training company that provides project management consultancy and / or coaching services to clients
- » an educator in the academic field who delivers project management courses for students
- » a consultant and / or coach who prepares candidates for IPMA certification.

What are the levels and titles?

IPMA defines a three-level system for certification of Consultants and Coaches (CC):

IPMA® Level A: Certified Executive Consultant and Coach in project management (CECC)

IPMA® Level B: Certified Senior Consultant and Coach in project management (CSCC)

IPMA® Level C: Certified Consultant and Coach in project management (CCC)

Digital badges

If you have decided to provide your participants with CPD Record & Proof of Participation, they will also receive an IPMA CCT digital badge which they can share on social media via my.ipma system (eg. LinkedIn, Facebook, Twitter) or as a signature in their emails.

Representing competencies as a badge will give your participants the possibility to share their accomplishments in a way that is simple, trusted, and can be easily verified in real-time, and bring additional promotion to you.

Digital badges provide employers and peers concrete evidence of what individuals had to do to earn their credential and what they are now capable of, as well as make it easier for individuals to track their career development.
